Voices of the South presents
the World Premiere of

this dry spell

by Keegon Schuett

WINNER of the 2024
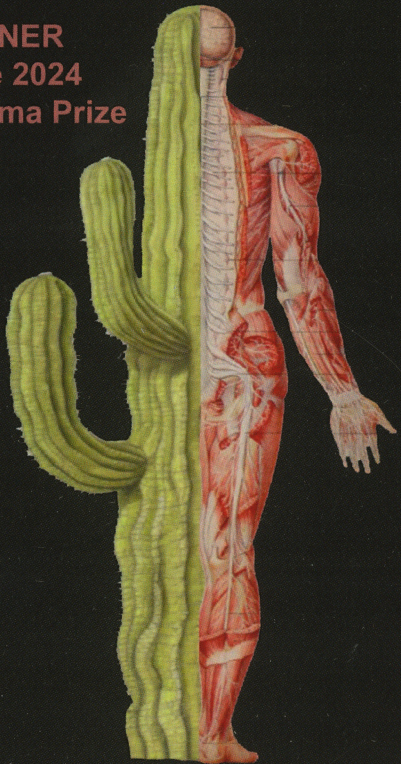
Yale Drama Prize



February 5-8, 12-15
TheatreSouth (1000 S. Cooper)
voicesofthesouth.org

Voices of the South presents
the World Premiere of

this dry spell

by Keegon Schuett

February 5-8, 12-15

(Thursday-Sat at 8PM, Sundays at 2PM)

TheatreSouth (1000 S. Cooper)

Voices of the South is proud to present the 2024 winner of the Yale Drama Series, this dry spell by Keegon Schuett.

"In a time of immense political and social upheaval when it feels as though hopelessness is a cloud that hangs heavy over all our interactions, this dry spell hit me like a cleansing rain."
—Jeremy O. Harris, American playwright, actor and screenwriter.

After one night together in the desert, Grace uproots their life to chase after Brahm, a person who is slowly becoming a cactus. Not known for having a green thumb, Grace tends to Brahm and the seeds of their own doubt. Can the desert be a place for love to grow, or are they both just waiting for rain? This deeply personal play aims to provide nourishment to those hiding in the shadows and create a space of recognition and magic for all.

Directed by New York based artist David Couter and featuring Alice Berry, Todd Berry, Ann Marie Caskey, Jon Castro, Steve Swift, Jacob Wingfield, and Leah Beth Wingfield.

TICKETS

Upcoming VOTS Events

Second Sunday New Works Series at 5:30pm

The Memphis Fringe Festival – April 24-25

Solo Performance Workshop – June 12-14

Led by Memphis Native Rebecca Fisher

voicesofthesouth.org